Anti-Saloon League Hold Biennial Meet; President Cheered

Chief Executive Referred to as Convinced and Sincere Dry

BINGHAM IS ASSAILED

Connecticut Senator Is Sponsor of 4 Per Cent Beer Bill

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A declaration that "We have a convinced and sincere dry in the White House," brought the delegates to the anti-saloon league's biennial meeting to their feet Monday with an outburst of cheering.

Rev. John M. Phillips of Hartford, Conn., made a statement that "there are enough people in the United States to see that we do not have anything else but a convinced and sincere dry there."

He assailed Senator Bingham of Connecticut, sponsor of the four per cent beer bill with the declaration that not all sons of wild jackasses come from west of the Mississippi river.

Meanwhile, testifying before the Senate committee considering Bingham's bill, Representative Dyer, of Missouri, said that the states refused to enforce the dry laws because the people regarded its definition of intoxicants as unscientific and dishonest.

Hiccough Victim Reported Improved

Mrs. Ethel Cantrell Suffers With Queer Malady Since Dec. 26

STUTTGART, Ark.—(AP)—An attack of hiccoughing with which Mrs. Ethel Cantrell of Humphrey has been suffering since December 26, was believed Monday to have been checked.

She was brought to a hospital here Sunday from her home at Humphrey.

The hiccoughing ceased late Sunday and she spent a restful night.

She was cheerful Monday despite her extreme weakness.

Counsel for 'Trunk Slayer' Plans Plea

Two Confer Behind Closed Doors Mapping Out Insanity Case

PHOENIX, Ariz.—(AP)—Attorneys for Ruth Winnie Judd conferred Sunday behind closed doors, mapping the plea of insanity which they plan to take into the superior court Tuesday in an effort to save her from the gallows for the "trunk slaying" of Hedvig Samuelson and Agnes Anne Lerol.

The attorneys, Herman Lewkowicz of Phoenix and Paul Schenck of Los Angeles, said there would be other pleas in the defense structure, including one of self-defense, but their efforts will be centered mostly on proving insanity to account for the killing of Mrs. Judd's two friends last October and the sending of their bodies to Los Angeles in two trunks and a suitcase.

Prosecution attorneys worked secretly Sunday drafting a plan of strategy which they hope will bring a verdict of first degree murder and a sentence of death from the jury.

The defense has subpoenaed three physicians to convince the 12-man jury—women do not sit on juries in Arizona—that slender, 27-year-old Mrs. Judd was mentally unbalanced.

Opposed to them will be two psychiatrists called by the state, Dr. Joseph Catton of Stanford University and Dr. Paul Bowers, Los Angeles, both of whom have appeared as experts in some of the most celebrated criminal trials on the Pacific coast.

Aged Fulton Resident Dies Early Sunday

A Mr. Cross, aged about 90, father of Mrs. E. U. Roberts, well known Fulton family, died Sunday following an extended illness.

Deceased was born at Freemont, Ohio, and for the past several years has made his home at Fulton, in the home of his daughter. He is survived by his widow and two daughters.

Funeral services and burial were conducted Monday afternoon at Rose Hill cemetery of this city, with Rev. J. C. Williams officiating.

Hot Campaign in Louisiana Ended

Voters to Decide on Long or Anti-Long Tickets in Primary Tuesday

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Louisiana Democrats are to vote pro-Long or anti-Long Tuesday in the first statewide primary since the hair-raising contest in which Governor Huey P. Long was elected to the United States Senate over former Senator Joseph E. Ransdell.

Continuation of "Long-ism" is the sole issue in this campaign. Governor Long is asking the people to vote the "complete-the-work ticket" headed by his highway commission chairman, O. K. Allen, for governor and John B. Fournet, speaker of the House of Representatives, for lieutenant governor.

Actively opposing Allen and his ticket are George Seth Guion, of Jefferson parish and Dudley J. Leblanc, a member of the Louisiana Public Commission, for governor. Two other candidates for governor listed on the official ballot are State Senator William C. Boone and William L. Clark Jr.

Speaking for Allen and his administration ticket, Long has asked the voters to put these candidates in office in order to carry on his program of building "a hundred million dollars worth of roads and bridges in Louisiana."

"Don't change horses in the middle of the stream," he urged, "and don't split the ticket and tie the hands of the governor."

Mellon's Answers to Impeachment Is Given to Committee

Texas Lawmaker Renews His Attack Before Judiciary Body

CHARGES ARE DENIED

Representative of Secretary Directed to Supply List of Stockholders

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon's answer to impeachment charges were concluded before the House Judiciary Committee Monday, but they were immediately renewed by the accuser, Representative Wright Patman of Texas.

Alexander Gregg, representing Mellon made a sweeping disavowal of all charges, submitted to questions by the committeemen and indicated a willingness to be questioned by Patman, but the chairman overruled such procedure.

Gregg was directed to supply a list of the present holders of bank stock, which Mellon sold when he was appointed secretary.

Rail Rate Cut on Cotton Is Likely

Carriers Recommend 30 Per Cent Reduction in Hope Area

MEMPHIS.—(AP)—Rail rate reductions on cotton shipments ranging from 20 per cent in the central Memphis area to 30 per cent in Southwest Arkansas, to New Orleans and other Louisiana and Texas ports, appeared likely as the result of a week-end conference here of cotton-carrying railroads.

A second meeting is to be held in St. Louis this week, after which the detailed plan will be put up to the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval.

Some benefits are expected to accrue from this action despite its coming so late in the season. Although the bulk of the cotton is ordinarily moved by the first of February, much will be handled as late as July this season, railroad men said.

W. S. Atkins Files For City Attorney

Resigns From City Committee in Order to Be Candidate

W. S. Atkins, city attorney, resigned as committeeman from Ward Four in order to stand for re-election in the city primary next month, and not because of "other official duties" as reported in Saturday's Star, Mr. Atkins said Monday.

Mr. Atkins held the attorneyship by virtue of his election by the city council last spring, but next month will seek election at the hands of the voters. It was his opinion that the law would not permit him to hold a place on the city committee while seeking an elective office.

He filed for the attorney's office Monday morning.

Minister Freed in Killing Successor

Self Defense Plea Wins Freedom for Accused Pastor

LAMAR, Mo.—(AP)—Rev. J. A. Brown, 68, was acquitted Saturday night by a circuit court jury of a charge of murdering Rev. George Ridder, his successor in the pulpit of Halley's Bluff community church. He admitted the shooting but pleaded self defense.

The jury deliberated less than two hours in reaching a verdict. The trial was the second one held, a previous one last September being ruled a mistrial because of the continued illness of a juror.

Brown resigned as pastor of the church after he had been accused by members of his congregation of earning additional money by preaching at other churches.

Brown, who contended he fired in self-defense after Ridder attacked him during a visit at the Brown residence, was characterized as a "wolf in sheep's clothing" by Prosecutor Hallett.

The shooting occurred when Ridder went to ask Brown to preach the Easter sermon from the pulpit of the Halley's Bluff community church.

Attention to the voters in the coming election, February 23, is called to the announcement of L. C. (Lex) Helms, as a candidate for the office of alderman from Ward 1.

Mr. Helms is well known in the city and is thoroughly qualified to perform the duties of the office in which he is seeking.

He has been a resident of Hope since 1904. For 13 years he was employed by the Southern Grain and Produce Company, 10 years was spent as a salesman for the Hope Fertilizer Company and he is now the road as a representative of the Virginia Carolina Chemical Company.

Geneva Policy of U. S. Not Settled

Whether Budgetary or Direct Limitation Will Be Sought a Mystery

WASHINGTON.—With the American delegation to the disarmament conference scheduled to leave for Geneva Wednesday, one of the most important questions to be faced at the world party remains unsettled. This is the question of whether the United States shall agree to the budgetary method of limiting land, air and naval armaments.

The end of the preparatory period for the conference finds the War and Navy Departments ranged in opposition to State Department officials on the issue of whether armies and navies shall be limited by numbers and tonnage or by a limitation on the amount of money each nation may spend for national defense. The national defense forces favor a plan of the direct method of limitation of material by numbers and by categories of armaments.

The State Department seems to favor adoption, at least in part, of the method whereby expenditures on armaments and war materials would be limited by treaty. Whether the State Department favors limiting army and navy personnel by limiting expenditures on such forces has not been made clear.

Arkansas Pen Escapee Is Caught in Kentucky

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—George Young, 33, who in 1924 "shot up" the town of Lamberton, Union county, killing one man and wounding another, and who escaped from the state farm at Tucker where he was serving a life sentence, was recaptured Saturday at Henderson, Ky., S. L. Todhunter, warden of the penitentiary, said Saturday night.

Young's recapture was the third escaped life term prisoner to be returned to the "walls" in less than a month. Warden Todhunter on December 2, returned Raymond Cole, Montgomery county slayer, from Wolf Point, Mont., and January 6, he brought about the recapture of Floyd Reynolds, White county slayer.

VALLEY CITY, N. D.—(AP)—A long distance telephone call for a man whose address was given as "somewhere in North Dakota" was successfully completed by toll operators here after calling 93 towns.

The operators called 700 hotels, 25 garages, 90 implements dealers and 50 residences and stores before they located the man.

Many Candidates In Senatorial Race

Campaign to Overshadow that of Governor in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The campaign for United States senator probably will overshadow that for governor this year for the first time in more than a decade in Arkansas.

Not until the senatorial campaigns are outlined will the governor's race take full shape.

Beneath the outward signs of present maneuvering is a deep seated race for the inside positions for both offices, and the results will in large measure determine who the strong candidates will be.

The special election last week disposed of all consideration of the short term for United States senator, and served to focus the prospective candidates' mind on the race which will end with the democratic primary next August 8.

Comparatively few candidates are "set" for the campaigns, but a few announcements have served to help outline the races.

Vincent M. Miles, of Fort Smith, democratic national committeeman, has announced for the senate, and Governor Parnell has been busy laying the foundation for his campaign, which he probably will start in May.

Earl V. Hardin of Fort Smith, Rex Floyd of Yellville, and Melborne Martin of Little Rock, are the others definitely in the race.

Supreme Court Justice W. F. Kirby, who served in the United States senate during the World war, may be a candidate. He was defeated for re-election in 1920 by the late Senator T. H. Caraway.

Although now considered a candidate for re-election, Attorney General Hal L. Norwood also is mentioned as a possible senatorial aspirant.

Discussions of possibilities also bring in the names of two El Dorado men—O. L. Goldenhamer, former national commander of the American Legion, and Joe K. Mahoney, attorney.

Political circles probably will be informed in two or three weeks as to Congressional Heartill Ragon's intentions. Whether he will seek re-election from the Fifth district, run for the senate, or seek the governor's office, are questions the politicians would like to have answered.

Judge Richard M. Mann of Little Rock was the first to launch a gubernatorial campaign. He announced a week ago.

This race probably will attract two other circuit judges—S. M. Bone of Batesville, and W. J. Waggoner of Boone. Chancellor J. M. Fawcett of Paragould also has been mentioned. Whether three Russellville men—

City Clerk Webb Asks Re-Election

Former City Recorder Makes Political Announcement Today

Fred Webb, Hope's veteran city recorder, will seek re-election to his old office now known as city clerk, in the Democratic city primary February 23, he announced in the political column of today's Star.

Mr. Webb, who was elected in 1930, and then had to stand for re-election last spring after serving but one year of the new term, on account of the city's new first-class charter, deviated his campaign utterance to thanking the voters for their past favors, and asking their support for one more election.

Mr. Webb, in addition to his duties as city clerk, is also treasurer of the water and sewer district of the entire city.

16 Alleged Soviet Agents Arrested

Roumanian Police Charge Russians, Carrying $30,000 With Terrorist Aims

BUCHAREST, Roumania.—(AP)—Sixteen alleged Soviet secret agents—one of them described as a beautiful woman—have been arrested at Constanza.

Roumanian authorities said they believed the prisoners to have been commissioned to organize a terrorist campaign against leading persons in what police called the biggest Soviet espionage plot in all years. They were seized as they disembarked from the Greek ship Philomena, which arrived from Odessa with false papers.

The Russians, who carried more than $30,000 in gold and United States currency and a number of documents in secret code were alleged to have connections with espionage organizations in Paris.

Their presence aboard the Philomena was tipped off by a secret agent in the Belgian legation at Istanbul, Roumanian authorities said.

The arrests aroused intense interest here in view of negotiations now pending for a non-aggressive pact between Soviet Russia and Roumania.

20 Point Gain For Cotton Last Week

Both Domestic and Export Demand Better Than One Year Ago

MEMPHIS.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture)—The cotton market during the period January 9th to 15th witnessed a very steady undertone with quotations at the end of the week about 20 points higher than the closing quotations of the week before.

Reports continued to say that domestic demand was of a hand to mouth character but foreign demand had improved with buyers' inquiries centered largely on the lower grades of cotton in the lengths 7-8 inch up to 11-12 inch inclusive and although the offerings of such cottons are now more plentiful, sellers were said to have been asking very full prices.

The present situation is rather unusual inasmuch as the supplies of unsold raw cotton are large but the offerings are not free.

Average price middling 7-8 inch as compiled from the quotations of the designated markets January 15th 5.25c, compared with $5.90c January 8th and 9.28c for corresponding date a year ago. Sales of spot cotton reported by the designated markets the past week were in fair volume.

According to the Bureau of Census domestic consumption for the month of December amounted to 415,517 bales compared with 405,518 for December 1930, and for the five months ending December 31 consumption amounted to 2,200,000 bales compared with 2,000,000 for the like period a year ago.

According to the same source cotton on hand December 31 in consuming establishments in the United States amounted to 1,600,000 bales against 1,700,000 last season.

Exports continue to show slight gains over those of a year ago, and total exports to January 15th this season amounted to about 4,400,000 bales against about 4,300,000 the previous season. Exports to Japan and China continue comparatively heavy.

6 Bombers on Trip of Aid to Indians

Drop 10,800 Pounds of Rations to the Snow-Bound Tribe

WINSLOW, Ariz.—(AP)—Six army bombing airplanes from March field, Calif., took the air at 8:30 a. m. Sunday on a mission of mercy to snow-bound and suffering Navajo Indians of this district.

By noon 10,800 pounds of rations had been dropped at widely separating points. The work continued.

The hungry and shivering red men rushed eagerly to each spot where the bundles of provisions struck the snow-covered earth. The parcels were torn open with ravenous haste and their contents distributed among the tribesmen.

Officials said at noon that the delivery of supplies will be slower henceforth, as the more remote settlements are reached.

Sunday's actual delivery of food followed survey flights Saturday in which "distress points" were designated over the reservation and expeditions were conducted in dropping food. It soon became plain that the bundles must be wrapped in many thicknesses of heavy paper and burlap. Beans and other loose articles were scattered over 1000 square feet of snow when an ordinary cloth sack was used on the first flight.

Each plane carried 900 pounds of food divided into 10 bundles of equal weight, the packages containing beans, flour, sugar, salt pork and dried fruit.

The annual election meeting for the Hemstead County Chapter of the American Red Cross and the Hope Associated Charities, has been called for 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Hope city hall.

The announcement was made Monday by D. B. Thompson, chairman of the county Red Cross, who urged a representative group turn out from both memberships for the joint meeting.

Chancellor Holds School Has Right to $80,200 Debt

Supreme Court Decision Speeded Up by Friendly Suit of Bay

$17,000 IS AT STAKE

Amount Still Needed to Finish School Year, With Teachers Helping

The Hope School District won its first round in its fight to validate its floating debt at $80,200, when Chancellor C. E. Johnson upheld the right of a district to reach the maximum figure of its unbonded debt at the time of the passage of the school reorganization act of 1931, in a decision from Texarkana Sunday.

The case had been submitted to Chancellor Johnson late Saturday with decision reserved until Sunday.

Following the verdict of the lower court, the Hemstead County Taxpayers' Association, plaintiffs in the friendly action, filed an appeal to the supreme court.

O. A. Graves, representing the district, carried the fight to the supreme court, with the supreme court morning session, making that day's session advanced as a matter of official duty.

An Associated Press dispatch, Monday noon reported that the supreme court had accepted this request, and would announce its decision February 8.

A favorable decision for the school board on that date is expected to enable the Hope schools to remain open for the second semester, beginning February 1.

Members of the Hope faculties have already accepted a 50 per cent salary reduction, which, with the additional money provided the schools by current debt expansion, would allow them to finish the year, in the opinion of board members.

Seek $80,200 Limit

The issue at law is whether the Hope district is limited to $80,000 floating debt—the amount of its annual income—or $80,200, the figure at which the unbonded debt stood when the legislature passed the school reorganization act one year ago. The district's present floating debt is $55,000, plus $8,000 to be reserved for interest payment on the bonded debt, a total of $63,000—so that an actual $17,200 will be made available for the balance of the year if the district sustains its right to the $80,200 figure.

Funeral services were held for the child Sunday afternoon at Sandy Ridge cemetery, while his father, a plantation foreman, and sister, Miss V. C. Spraberry, 17, were recovering from injuries in the Blytheville hospital.

The child's mother and another sister, Joyce, 12, also suffered minor cuts and bruises when the Spraberry car, collided with a speed truck driven by Jack Norton, 20, of Paragould, who was unhurt.

Small Town Distinction

There are a good many different ways of winning distinction in this world; and one way, which seems a little more little pathetic and more than a little admirable, is depicted in a laconic newspaper dispatch which appeared the other day telling how an 84-year-old woman in a little Michigan village has completed her 60th year of service as organist in the village church.

As distinctions go, that record is mild enough. It earned hardly a scant half-dozen lines in the newspapers, and the diligent local correspondent could hardly have devoted more than half a column to it.

Yet there is something about it that makes you stop and think.

It paints a picture, to begin with, a picture instantly recognizable by anyone who has lived in a small town.

Who hasn't seen those devoted, hard-working little old ladies of the village church—women whose entire orbit spans hardly more than a dozen miles of space, whose interests center about the home and the church? Their lives are busy and uneventful. They find their only freedom in service. What unnumberable little village affairs, from church socials to school picnics, have they not, by devotion and hard work, made success?

Of course, it isn't often that we tip our hats to them. Through some illogical twist of values, we have discovered something inherently comic in the rural scene. Any gibberish of a numb-brained movie director can always find a laugh in the fact that some people live in a farming community. The ladies of the rural church are presented as faintly ridiculous and bizarre.

But we know better, if we have lived there; and this little lady who has played the organ (doubtless a somewhat wheezy one) for six decades will seem a rather impressive figure. To stick to one job, any job, for 60 years in a row is to do vastly better than most of us can ever do; and in the unwritten history of such a woman there is a profound and in spring tale of fidelity and unselfishness that we could study with a great deal of profit.

A Great Trunk Highway in Arkansas

ACCORDING to an official of the Broadway of America Association, this 3,467-mile route is paved all the way from New York City to San Diego, with the exception of a gap totaling 132 miles in length. The location of these "missing links" was not specified. But the Hot Springs Sentinel Record suspects that a longer stretch of them exists in the 318 miles of the route in Arkansas than in any other state, and says more specifically:

Some of the unpaved miles are between Hot Springs and Texarkana, and more of the unpaved miles are between Little Rock and Memphis. Traffic is being detoured. The highway is not a complete link, nor will ever be, until Arkansas puts a hard surface on an all-weather base.

Of course it is important that all main state roads should be completed throughout as rapidly as the highway department can find money for the work. But of the main roads that have gaps to be closed, the great trans-state and trans-continental road between Memphis and the Texas border most demands early attention. We need the tax revenues and tourist business obtainable from this great artery of travel. And we need the favorable advertising we should receive if this trunk highway were completed for the whole of its length in Arkansas.—Arkansas Gazette.

Will Be Applauded For That

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT, himself a prospective presidential candidate, declared in a public address that the democrats should refrain from personal criticism of the president of the United States.

There is a difference between a personal criticism and a public criticism. President Hoover is accepted by the people of this country as a patriotic citizen, and an honest and honorable man. He is that.

This nation has had but a single president in all its history whose record didn't stand for integrity—and even that one was regarded as a man of personal integrity, but one imposed upon by corruptionists. Warren G. Harding's administration was honey-combed with graft and corruption, but an American public believes he was imposed upon.

President Hoover is publicly charged with friendliness to foreign governments even to the point of not properly representing his own people. That may be true, but it isn't corruptly true. President Hoover has served the country through a troubled period. He is not unpatriotic.

The democrats will do well to confine their criticism to policies, and not to impugn motives.

The facts surrounding the administration of the late Woodrow Wilson, democratic president, might have made for a lot of severe criticism. That democratic president was elected on the "kept us out of war" slogan, and the president knew, and the nation knew, that war was inevitable, and that it should be fought as soon as the election was over, war would be declared.

When we criticize the Hoover administration, it must be along the line of facts.—Hot Springs Sentinel-Record.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

MR. G. O. CARMICHAEL, president and sole owner of the Pome-Mald Bakery Products Company (Carmichael's Big Cream Loaf, Carmichael's Cookies for Kiddies, Carmichael's Cakes for Choies Occasions), stood on his front porch and frowned across his well-mown lawn over to his bugles pink roses and sighed worriedly.

Gray haired, healthy, clean shaven, excellently tailored, in appearance he resembled a banker—or thought that he did. His ambition for 25 years since he bought his first small shop and stopped doing baking for the other fellow, had been to look like a banker. That, then, must have been so much to the good on this early Monday morning. Also, conscience clear, he had slept well, had arisen, breakfasted satisfactorily, kissed his wife whom he loved devotedly, and had gone now—as far as the porch, at least—to a business that was thriving robustly at a time when many businesses were failing.

Neither surfaces nor depths seemed to provide reason for Mr. Carmichael's depression. Peace should have been dropping slow. But, had someone come inquiring as to the absence of the nine bean rows and the hive for the honeybees, he would have been told that Mr. Carmichael had a disagreeable duty to perform. Duties were Mr. Carmichael's fetters. Kindly, well meaning, earnestly mistaken about many things, Mr. Carmichael did not need to see his duty to do it. He accepted duties from afar and made them his own with a will or two; he heard them whispering in the wind and caught them on the wing. No duty, no matter to whom it belonged, was safe anywhere near Mr. Carmichael.

Mary Frances Fenwick was coming down the walk on her way to school. Mr. Carmichael, affecting a strolling gait, met her by the pink roses in his parking.

"Good morning, my dear," he said.

"Good morning, Mr. Carmichael."

"Nice morning, isn't it? On your way to school, I suppose?"

"Yes, Mr. Carmichael."

"School soon out now, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir. We're having our finals this week. It is algebra today. I am dreadfully worried about it. It's so hard."

"SPEAKING of worries," said Mr. Carmichael, "I've been quite a bit worried myself, here of late. Very queer thing. For some time now I've noticed a young couple over in your yard—right near the corner. They meet there frequently. I wonder if your grandfather would like to have that sort of thing going on in his yard?"

"What sort of thing?" said Mary Frances.

"Love making, I have no doubt. Innocent love making," modestly insisted Mr. Carmichael, "but—right after night. No. I am certain that your grandfather would not like it."

"I don't much think he'd care," Mary Frances comforted.

"I'm not so sure of that, young lady. I'm not so sure of that. Here is a peculiar thing. The girl is your size and build. In fact, if I didn't know what a sensible little lady you were, I'd be positive that she was you. But I know you too well to think that you'd be spunking out in the yard, night after night, when you should be in the house studying your algebra. That's the way I know this girl isn't you. You understand, I'm sure she isn't. In fact, I'm so sure of it that, unless I see the couple there again, I've decided not to mention it to your grandfather at all. Of course, if I should ever see them there again, even once more—and I feel it is my duty to watch out—then I'll be bound to inform your grandfather, and no it's nor and's about it."

Mary Frances' cheeks dimmed the roses' color. She said, "I'll have to hurry now, I guess. I always go for my friend, Ermintrude Hill. Goodbye, Mr. Carmichael."

and walked away so fast that she heard Mr. Carmichael say, "A word to the wise," only once, though he said it three times before he said, "Well, that's off my mind," and smiled his satisfaction, and went to take his car from the garage.

IT was a pity, a great pity. But for Mr. Carmichael and his duty, there is a slim chance, at least, that

Mary Frances might not have dunked at in her algebra examination; and there is a stout certainty that she never would have written to Earl DeArmour:

Dear Prince Wonderful:

All has been discovered. We dare never meet again. Whatever you do, don't come to see me tonight. I mean it really. This, dearest, is our first enforced absence from each other. Beloved, let us put our hearts together and get comfort. It is not a true separation to know that another part of the world contains the rest of me. Oh, the rest of me, the rest of me that you are! So, thinking of you, I can never be tired. I rest yours. I will give this letter to my friend to take to you, and if you will answer in the enclosed, addressed, stamped envelope I should get it before I go to school in the morning. Answer at once, and be sure to use the envelope, because it is Ermintrude's writing, and if the family should see it before I do they would think I was getting a note from Ermintrude. Dearest, I love you too much, too much. I cannot write it.

I am your most unhappy and loving, Frankie.

It is difficult to know what to do with quotation marks in Mary Frances' letter. It is so mixed up. Perhaps the sections that she cribbed can be detected without pointing at them. The child had a certain genius for getting hold of books she would have done just as well or better without. Her plan for acquiring them had, as has much of genius, its roots, at least, in simplicity. She hunted hard, and high and low, for books that had the word "love" in their title, excluding only those that seemed to deal with religion or nature study. Rosalie's mind liked going the easy, anthropological ways, and she frequently confessed that, though aware of her folly, she could read better with a pencil in her fingers; so the small bamboo stand behind her door ("My own intimate collection—my dearest friends. One should have them close at hand; don't you agree with me?") was richly fertile with ready reference material for Mary Frances.

The Englishwoman's Love Letters, however, had not been found to Rosalie's room. Their thin volume had been squeezed crooked between West Coast Shells and An Epitome of Modern European Literature (1883), in the library downstairs. It was filled with pressed, powdery four-leaf clovers, which were a nuisance. In the front of it was a bookplate, undecorated, which read, "This Book is the Property of A. N. Monks, and Just Be Returned to Him Without Fail." In the back of it, rubber stamped, were the purple words, "This Book is the property of the Cozy Nook Circulating Library, Wendling, Utah." Another of these black-sheep volumes that are fated to stray and get lost on the most moral, dignified, and law-abiding bookshelves. Poor little thing, it all grained its tragic as Mary Frances shoved it back into its place.

ERMINTRUDE, who had been waiting during the long process of the latter's construction, said, "Well, if you're through at last, let's go. Let's don't waste the whole afternoon."

"Waste!" sighed Mary Frances, and followed Ermintrude out of the sour, dark old library into the warm, fragrant bouquet of June.

On the front porch Ermintrude paused to say again—she had said it several times before—"I just don't see any sense in it."

Mary Frances crooked her arm around Ermintrude's plump waist. "Come on, darling. I'll walk as far as the fire house with you."

"No, but what I mean," explained Ermintrude, as she allowed herself to be led along, "is that if you're going as far as the fire house, I don't see why you can't go on the rest of the way and call on him yourself and tell him yourself about Mr. Carmichael and all, instead of me calling on him and giving him a letter."

"All I can say to that," deplored Mary Frances, "is that if you don't just naturally understand a thing like this, Ermintrude, just naturally understand it. It wouldn't be any use in the world for me to try to explain it to you. I'd do as much for you, any time. And, anyway, I don't think it is such an awful lot to do, considering that I'm right in the midst of a life tragedy and everything."

"Mary Frances," said Ermintrude, "are you positively certain that you dunked algebra this morning?"

"That's about the hundredth time you've asked me. What's the use of talking about it all the time?"

"You don't even care, do you, that we won't get our ponies to ride in camp nor anything?"

"I do too care. But I think your father will get yours anyway. It wouldn't be right not to get yours just because I lunked."

"The trouble with Daddy," sighed Ermintrude, "is that he always does just exactly what he says he will, and he never does what he says he won't. He said it we both passed in everything he'd get us both ponies to ride. And if we had, he'd get the ponies if he'd had to go to Pendleton or some place and steal 'em. But since you lunked, he won't, and that's all there is to it. I guess I know my own father better than you do."

Kansas City Southern Aids Change in Rules

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Kansas City Southern railroad appealed Thursday to the Arkansas railroad commission to relieve it of carrying passengers on freight trains, as required by an act of 1893.

The law was passed to afford a convenience to the public, as at that time, few passenger trains were run and there was need of a "local service."

Times have changed, however, the railroad petitioned, and there is no longer need for the service.

The commission set February 18 as the date of the hearing.

Poultry Expert to Visit Sevier County

DEQUEEN, Ark.—G. W. Knox, poultryman with the extension service of the University of Arkansas, will be in Sevier county on January 21, to give demonstrations on the making of a home made brick brooder stove. Two demonstrations will be given, one at D. M. Caddell's home near King in the morning of January 21, and the other at Mrs. John Huckabee's home near DeQueen on the afternoon of the same day.

According to Miss Mildred Cantlon, home demonstration agent, the brick brooders are no more expensive than an oil or kerosene burning stove and in some cases the cost is less. They also have the advantage of using wood for fuel, and being made of brick, the heat is fluctuating. They have been found to be satisfactory and inexpensive. Anyone in the poultry business or who raises a home flock will find a brick brooder easily made and upon attending these meetings will learn how to construct one, Miss Cantlon says.

Builds Key Man to Lead Alabama Basketball Team

TUSCALOOSA, Ala.—(AP)—Coach Hank Cypis has reversed theorizer and is building up a key man to lead his basketball team, rather than building the team around a key man.

Bob cotton, tall and clever under a basket, seems the most likely man to get the call for the season. He was a substitute last year.

MANY CANDIDATES

Sam Rorex, Brooks Hays or Judge A. B. Priddy—will seek to succeed Governor Farnell furnishes more conjecture. Only one of the three, if any, would run. And the decision probably depends somewhat on what Congressman Ragon will do.
Comptroller Howard Reed's friends have been booming him for the race. Regarded as a candidate for some time, Dwight H. Blackwood, chairman of the state highway commission, has yet made no formal announcement but talk has it he has continued to make his plans to that end.
Lamar Williamson of Monticello, chairman of the democratic state central committee and a close personal friend of Governor Farnell, has been silent as to any plans he might have, but reports persist he will be in the race.
Lieutenant Governor Lawrence E. Wilson of Camden is running for reelection at present, but there is talk he will enter the governor's race.
The various congressional races also are taking shape. In the seventh district, State Senator Fletcher McElhannon of Arkadelphia has announced for the place held by Congressman Tilman B. Parks of Camden, who is expected to stand for re-election. Representative Wade Kitchens of Magnolia also is a probable candidate, as is Senator Duval L. Purkiss of Warren.

In the fourth district, the hottest race of all may be seen. Mrs. Effie Gene Wingo has not said whether she will seek re-election, but her candidacy is regarded as certain.
Opposing her is A. D. Dulaney, state insurance commissioner, who served as prosecuting attorney of his district while residing at Ashdown, and Ben Cravens, of Fort Smith, former congressman. Others are expected to enter.
In the fifth district, all depends upon what Congressman Hearlill Ragon does.
There have been no reports of opposition for the incumbents in the other districts.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—(AP)—County officials Saturday refused to take seriously a claim for $400 of the $1000 reward offered for the "dead or alive" capture of Harry and Jennings Young, slayers of six peace officers, filed by W. L. Strane, Springfield undertaker. "Starn" returned the slayers' bodies from Houston, Texas.
